To Whom It May Concern:

I rarely become involved in expressing my opinion on issues concerning the public. However, I feel the idea of bringing Nuclear Waste to Nevada compels me to speak up.

I am appalled and shocked that scientists of today honestly think that carrying nuclear waste through several states poses little to no risk. Something as "safe" as gasoline poses a risk when it travels the streets. Do you really believe that a nuclear waste vehicle has no risk of being in an accident while it travels? If that were the case perhaps we should use nuclear waste vehicles (with the nuclear waste actually on board) as a means of public transportation or school busing. Now that would be ridiculous!! Just as ridiculous transporting nuclear waste through unsuspecting towns, cities, and communities with millions of US citizens.

Please reconsider bringing nuclear waste to Nevada. Nevada citizens will not be the only ones at risk with the danger!!!!

Sincerely,

Tracy Herrick, US Citizen
